The human brain is the central organ of the human nervous system, and with the spinal cord makes up the central nervous system. The brain consists of the cerebrum, the brainstem and the cerebellum. It controls most of the activities of the body, processing, integrating, and coordinating the information it receives from the sense organs, and making decisions as to the instructions sent to the ...

Bariatric surgery is a major event in a patient's weight-loss journey, but the event is best seen as a new beginning. Obesity is a lifelong disease and there is no operation, diet or medication that can by itself offer a permanent cure.

Ischemia or ischaemia is a restriction in blood supply to tissues, causing a shortage of oxygen that is needed for cellular metabolism (to keep tissue alive). Ischemia is generally caused by problems with blood vessels, with resultant damage to or dysfunction of tissue. It also means local anemia in a given part of a body sometimes resulting from congestion (such as vasoconstriction, thrombosis ...

Evidence suggests a correlation between the gut microbiota composition and weight loss caused by caloric restriction. Laparoscopic sleeve gastrectomy (LSG), a surgical intervention for obesity, is classified as predominantly restrictive procedure. In this study we investigated functional weight loss mechanisms with regard to gut microbial changes and energy harvest induced by LSG and a very ...

Loss of estrogen from menopause increases the risk of developing metabolic diseases. Torres et al. show that 17 $\beta$ -estradiol (E2) localizes to mitochondrial membranes consistent with whole-body E2 status. The presence of E2 decreases microviscosity, which improves bioenergetic function, thus offering a biophysical mechanism by which E2 influences energy homeostasis.

Mitochondria: Energy production (metabolic function) in the body is reliant on mitochondria in the cells. These are small organelles that float around inside a cell, and each cell contains up to several thousand mitochondria depending on its function.

Fatty liver disease. Fatty liver is a condition in which the cells of the liver accumulate abnormally increased amounts of fat. Although excessive consumption of alcohol is a very common cause of fatty liver (alcoholic fatty liver), there is another form of fatty liver, termed nonalcoholic fatty liver disease (nonalcoholic fatty liver disease), in which alcohol has been excluded as a cause.
