Vector Calculus, Linear Algebra, and Differential Forms: A

We are given a training dataset of points of the form (\hat{x}^i, y^i) , where the y^i are either 1 or -1, each indicating the class to which the point \hat{x}^i belongs. Each \hat{x}^i is a d -dimensional real vector. We want to find the "maximum-margin hyperplane" that divides the group of points \hat{x}^i for which $y^i = 1$ from the group of points for which $y^i = -1$, which is defined so that the distance between the ...

In vector calculus, a conservative vector field is a vector field that is the gradient of some function. Conservative vector fields have the property that the line integral is path independent, i.e., the choice of any path between two points does not change the value of the line integral. Path independence of the line integral is equivalent to the vector field being conservative.

What a powerful, clear introduction to Linear Algebra! Since the field was completed long before this book was published (although important generalizations have been made, they are far above the level of this course), it is as good as the current edition for reference, at a tiny fraction of the cost.

Box and Cox (1964) developed the transformation. Estimation of any Box-Cox parameters is by maximum likelihood. Box and Cox (1964) offered an example in which the data had the form of survival times but the underlying biological structure was of hazard rates, and the transformation identified this.
